Bolshevist Armies Hurl Themselves At Poles; Advance 20 Kilos

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—According to advices from Berlin, the Russian Commanders are disinclined to cease hostilities against Poland in accordance with the Soviet's orders, owing to the prevalence of Tsarist officers in the Bolshevist army.

It is stated that leading Russian Nationalists, failing to win Allied help, have established an organisation in Berlin and are endeavoring to secure the co-operation of the German reactionaries who welcome such an alliance, hoping thereby to regain power and acquire political and economic predominance in Russia.

GERMANY SPEAKS

Berlin, July 28.—Dr. von Simons, Minister for Foreign Affairs, in the course of a speech in the Reichstag yesterday, emphasised Germany's responsibility in participating in the support of Poland.

Dr. von Simons added that he was curious to see whether the Entente would repeat the Versailles mistake

"REDS" ADVANCE

Warsaw, July 27.—A communique, issued today, states that, in spite of their acceptance of the Polish armistice proposal, the Bolsheviks have resumed violent attacks along the whole front, capturing various points to the east of the Galician frontier, and advancing 20 kilometers to the south of Grodno.

PINSK CAPTURED

Warsaw, July 28.—A wireless message states that the Bolshevists have captured Pinsk, crossing the line defined in the Spa Conference's armistice proposal.

BRITAIN'S NOTE

London, July 29.—Great Britain sent a preliminary inquiry to Moscow yesterday on the subject of ambiguities in Tchitcherin's note regarding which Powers shall be represented at the Russo-Polish conference.

German—Soviet Pact Announced

(Reuter's Service)

Copenhagen, July 28.—A Magdeburg newspaper asserts that an agreement has been signed between the Soviet and German Independent Socialists and Spartacists providing for the proclamation of a Bolshevik republic at Koenigsberg, Danzig, Breslau and other towns, immediately the Soviet troops have crossed the German frontier and also for the formation of a Red German army, under the Russian General Tentscheff, the establishment of revolutionary tribunals and communist municipal commissions and the nationalisation of industry, the Russian army maintaining order and protecting the proletariat.

Passenger Fares In England To Be Increased

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Bonar Law announced that the Government had accepted all the recommendations of the Railway Rates Committee, regarding increases in passenger fares, except with regard to workmen's fares, the increase on which will be further considered.

The increased fares will operate from August 6, except the workmen's fares, which will operate from September 1.

Chancellor Explains That England Has Reached Taxable Capacity

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—The Finance Bill was read for the third time in the House of Commons today.

Mr. Asquith contended that wasteful and extravagant expenditure was to be attributed more to the Government policy than to its administration, and quoted Mesopotamia as an example, where, he said, the estimates had recently been largely reduced but the forces were now being increased.

REACHED LIMIT

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, agreed that Great Britain had about reached the limit of her taxable capacity but pointed out that expenditure in 1918-19 was £3,446,000,000, which had been reduced to £2,106,000,000 last year and would be reduced to £1,282,000,000 this year.

He said that he believed that it would be an ignoble and foolish policy to give up all care for Mesopotamia and Palestine and to abandon our responsibilities elsewhere, and that we should purchase neither security nor economy thereby.

ALL ARE RATIONED

"The Government," Mr. Chamberlain added, "had gone as near to rationing the Army, Navy and Air Force as possible in a world where we are not masters of events."

The Bill passed the third reading.

Dyer Subscription Questioned In House

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Major M. Mackenzie Woods with regard to the public subscription, which is being raised on behalf of General Dyer, Mr. Winston Churchill said that King's Regulations forbade the acceptance of such a present but, as General Dyer had now applied for permission to retire, he did not propose to take any action.

EMIR FEISUL IS THROUGH

Must Leave Damascus Within 24 Hours, Says Edict

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 29.—The Premier, M. Millerand, made a statement on French policy in Syria in the Senate yesterday.

"France," he said, "is the protector of the Syrian population. She has erected about 100 hospital installations in Syria. Under her influence more than 40,000 children were being educated in 1913 in more than 80 schools.

"It is the duty of the French Government to protect French nationals, who go abroad to introduce with trade the name and influence of France.

EMIR FEISUL

"The Emir Feisul, in spite of our efforts, continues to intrigue against us and he will have to leave the town of Damascus within 24 hours.

"Our policy is not a policy of domination since our greatest desire is not to have recourse to force. In every circumstance we prefer diplomacy to war."

The credits, asked by General Gouraud, were voted in full by 205 votes to 85.

SYRIANS APPEAL

Paris, July 29.—The new Syrian Government has approached General Gouraud and has made the following declaration:

"The Emir Feisul, who has brought his country within a step of ruin, has ceased to reign. An indemnity of 10,000,000 francs will be paid in [illegible] of the damages caused by the [illegible]

[illegible] to the French authorities. The principal offenders will be tried by court-martial.

These terms have been accepted by the new Government, which declares that it will loyally carry them out.

The railway line between Reyak and Damascus was restored on July 26.

FRENCH IN ALEPPO

Paris, July 28.—A telegram from Beirut states that the French occupied Aleppo on July 23 and entered Damascus on July 25. A new Sherifian Government has been formed and has accepted General Gouraud's conditions, including immediate disarmament and the deposition of the Emir Feisul, who has been asked to leave the country.

Also payment of ten million francs as reparation for damage by guerilla warfare; the Syrian army to be reduced and transformed into a police force, all warmaterial to be handed over to the French, and the principal guilty persons to be tried by military tribunals.

JAPANESE SEE TROUBLE AHEAD IN NEW U.S. LAW

Ruin Of Merchant Marine Is Seen In Jones Bill; Merchant Explains

PREPARING A PROTEST

Will Drive Jap Ships Off The Seas, Says Mr. Hashimoto

(Japan Advertiser)

Mr. Kizo Hashimoto, a prominent shipowner and Kenseikai member of the Diet not satisfied with the recent answer of the Minister of Communications to his interpellation in the Diet regarding the new merchant marine policy of America, will shortly address a written interpellation to the Government on the same subject.

He takes the view that as 50 percent of Japan's merchant marine is interested in the Pacific trade, it will suffer most severely from the new law of America, and he urges prompt action on the part of the Japanese Government to remedy the situation.

It is understood that this is the principal point of his interpellation which will be to the following effect:

"The Minister of Communications says that he is not yet in a position to say anything definite regarding the new shipping law of America as its contents are not yet know, but it should be distinctly understood that question at issue has a vital bearing on Japan's shipping, foreign trade, and industry.

[illegible] to give the greatest possible protection to American [illegible] and for this purpose it is proposed to impose stringent restriction and persecution on foreign shipping which the American authorities intend to drive away from all American ports. The idea is to carry all America's sea-borne trade by American vessels.

JAPAN AWAKE IN PAST

"Shipping operations between Japan and America, or in the Pacific, are usually attended by considerable difficulties, and the Japanese shipping services in that part of the world owe what they are to the great pains of the shipping companies and also to considerable sacrifices made by the Government.

"At present perfect freight and passenger services are maintained regularly, and in addition a number of other ships make frequent voyages. America, therefore, feels no inconvenience in regard to the shipping services.

"The new American law is an after-war measure, but it is preposterous that America should disregard international commercial relations by enacting a reactionary law to institute extreme discrimination against foreign shipping. It is a violation of the principle of justice and equality. What about the freedom of the seas which President Wilson so strongly advocated?

SAY U. S. WANTS SUPREMACY

"Great Britain has now 30,000,000 tons of ships or about a quarter of the world's total tonnage, and there are no seas on the face of the globe where the Union Jack is not to be seen. America has 22 percent of the world's tonnage, or about 16,000,000 tons. American ships have hitherto been operating with both coasts of North America as their centers of activities, but the American shipowners are now going ahead with a plan for obtaining supremacy in the Pacific.

"Japan's tonnage amounts to only 2,700,000 tons. These ships are operating between the Pacific coast of America, the Philippines, and China. Some steamers are in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic but they are a negligible quantity.

"The ships which are operating in the Pacific amount to no less than 80 percent of the total tonnage of this country, and it will easily be seen how serious the effect of the American law on Japanese shipping will be. A shipping country of Great Britain's supremacy and other foreign countries may be expected to suffer little from the American law, but it is reported that Mr. Lloyd George has addressed a protest to the American Government. It is urgently necessary that the Japanese Government should consider and take the steps necessary for meeting the situation without any further hesitation."

Remarkable Photograph Of Execution Of Four French Traitors At Vincennes

General Lu's Plan For Abolition Of Tuchunate Accepted

The abolition of the Tuchunate as the first step for genuine civil administration in China as proposed sometime ago by General Lu Yung-hsiang, Tuchun of Chekiang, has been adopted by leaders of the Chihli and Fengtien faction.

The nation will be divided into four special districts for the purpose of defense and bandit suppression; the Northwestern, the Central western, the South-western and the South-eastern. Generals Chang Tso-lin, Tsao Kun, Lu Yung-ting and Li Shun will be can[illegible] Chekiang and devote his efforts to educational, economical and industrial development upon the execution of his plan.

CEYLON TO HAVE POPULAR CONTROL

Briton Explains Changes Planned For Island By Government

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—In the House of Commons today replying to Colonel Josiah Wedgwood, Lieut.-Col. L. C. M. Amery, Under-Secretary for the Colonies, outlined changes in the constitution of Ceylon, giving a large measure of popular control over the administration, which Lord Milner had decided to recommend to the King.

Lieut.-Col. Amery said that it was proposed to alter the constitution of the Legislative Council by considerably extending the principle of popular election of members and giving unofficial members a substantial majority over the official vote.

PERSONNEL OF COUNCIL

Excluding the Governor, who would preside, the reformed Council would consist of 37 members, comprising 14 official and 28 unofficial members. Sixteen and subsequently 19 unofficial members would be elected, two of whom would represent Europeans and one the burghers.

In order to prevent deadlocks on essential matters, the Governor would be empowered to declare the passing of any measure to be of paramount importance, whereupon the measure would be carried by the votes of official members.

The Governor would also be empowered to prevent proceeding of the Council with regard to any measure affecting the safety and tranquillity of Ceylon. Three unofficial members of the Executive Council would be appointed.

ALLEGED ANFU ORGAN CLOSED IN SOOCHOW

Editor Is Arrested For Attacking Chihlians In Recent Dispute

(China Press Correspondence)

Soochow, July 29.—Since the proclamation of martial law in Kiangsu, Soochow has been taking every precaution for preventing the circulation of rumors in this city. The authorities are keeping a vigilant eye on the newspapers published in the city and especially on Soo Pao, the alleged Anfu newspaper.

In consequence of publishing fabulous and incendiary articles with the purpose of [illegible]

The Soo Pao was inaugurated last fall. Its manager, Mr. Wang, gets financial support from the Anfu Club. He receives $150 per month from Wang I-tang, the Northern Peace Delegate, for gratuity. But, when the wrangle between Anfu and Chihli parties broke out some time ago, the newspaper still made desperate efforts to favor the Anfu Club. This, it is said, incurred the wrath of Tuchun Li Shun.

Tokio Receives American Protest

(Reuter's Service)

Tokio, July 29.—The Japanese Government has received a communication from the United States Government pointing out, inter alia, that America is unable to recognise Japan's occupation of the northern half of Saghalin.

SHOWS REAL HAND

Tokio, July 29.—Mr. Ichizo Hattori, ex-Governor of Hyogo, recently inquired in the House of Peers whether Japan intended to occupy Saghalin permanently in the event of failure to obtain satisfaction for the Nikolaievsk massacre.

Mr. Hara, the Premier, replied that it would be detrimental to Japanese interests to disclose what the Government proposed to do.

Telegraph Director Says Troops Supervised His Clerks At Work

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 30.—The Director-General of Telegraphs, interviewed by Reuter today, stated that the commander of the Tingkuochun sent soldiers to the Peking telegraph office who strictly supervised the work of the office clerks and took away telegrams, regardless of whether they were official or private, in plain language or in code.

Neither the manager nor the superintendent could resist. The director-general himself was ill during the censorship period but in any case he would have been unable to do anything to resist the censors.

The director-general asserts that he was never a member of the Anfu Club, a supporter of the club, or a politician.

[illegible] learns that a report [illegible] in Peking today that [illegible] was arrested yesterday, [illegible] Although Chen Lu's name appeared on one of the earlier lists of alleged Anfuite offenders, his name was promptly cut out by the Peking authorities, who are satisfied that he has loyally served the country's interests, especially with regard to the Fukien and Shantung questions.

The Chihli leaders recognise that Chen Lu was never a tool of the Anfu leaders.

POLICE ON GUARD

Groups of gendarmerie are stationed at the Legation quarter gates and are holding up motor-cars, with a view to discovering the missing Anfuites.

The disbandment of the 3,000 Frontier Defense troops near Tungchow will be merely nominal as they were recruited in Fengtien and General Chang Tso-lin is incorporating them in the Fengtien forces.

It is reported that the 20th and 27th Fengtien Divisions will be permanently stationed at Peking. The 1st Fengtien Division will guard the railway between Peking and Mukden. Fengtien gendarmerie have established their headquarters in the Temple of Heaven.

ELECTION CALLED

A group of Anfuite members of Parliament, recalling the fact that Chow Shu-mu's nomination to the Premiership never received a vote, and desiring to placate the present authorities, summoned a meeting of Parliament today, Chow Shu-mu's nomination being the only business on the agenda—but only seventeen members attended.

Mandates were issued yesterday evening dismissing General Wu Kwang-hsin from the Tuchunship of Hunan and the Upper Yangtsze command, and promulgating a list of ten Anfu leaders whose arrest is ordered on the ground that they are responsible for the recent disturbances around Peking—namely, General Hsu Shu-tseng; Tsen Yu-chin, ex-Minister of Communications; Chu Shen, ex-Minister of Justice; General Ting Shih-yuan; Li Shi-hao, ex-Minister of Finance; General Tuan Chi-kwei; Yao Tseng, Chief Justice; Yao Kuo-cheng, Vice-Minister of Communications; Liang Hung-chi, chief secretary of the Senate and chief secretary of the Tingkuochun; and Wang Chi-lung, financial agent of the Anfu Club and financial agent of General Ni Shih-chung, Tuchun of Anhui.

Claim Against West End Estates Won By Defense

Judgment for defendants was rendered in the British Supreme Court yesterday in the claim of Chai versus the West End Estates. Judge Skinner Turner delivered the judgment. Mr. L. W. Kentwell appeared for the plaintiff, while Mr. P. W. Goldring represented the defendants.

The judgment was as follows:

"In February of this year the defendant company was in need of money; they were being pressed to pay off a mortgage on their properties. Through one Cumine, a director, they were in communication with the plaintiff, who already held a 2nd mortgage on the properties.

"He agreed to lend them Tls. 35,000 on March 31, 1920 on certain terms contained in a letter of February 12. To these terms Cumine on behalf of the defendants agreed, and the transaction appeared to be closed. The interest demanded by the plaintiff was undoubtedly high, just about 20 per cent.

"On March 16 the defendant refused to carry out the bargain and the plaintiff sues for damages for this breach of the contract.

"Now I am satisfied that a breach of a contract to borrow money gives rise to an action for damages; and the measure of these damages is the loss sustained by the lender in consequence of the borrower's default. Several defenses have been raised to the claim: principally that there was a new condition sought to be imposed by the plaintiff and that the defendant would not therefore agree; that the damages are not proved and in any event as claimed are too remote.

"It is also claimed that the contract is harsh and unconscionable and that this Court in its equitable jurisdiction will relieve the defendants from its onerous terms.

"On this last point it is enough to say that I can find no case anywhere approaching this one where a court of equity has interfered. The defendants were being pressed for money, that is true; but they were business people, going into the transaction with their eyes open and knowing the position fully. "They had agreed to heavy terms, if you like, for their money; but that is not enough to induce the court to interfere. There is nothing in this case to lead one to suspect constructive fraud or anything of that sort; and it certainly does not come within the principles laid down in Nevill v. Snelling (15 Ch. Div. 679).

"As to the damages: if the defendants have broken the contract, the plaintiff is entitled to some damages; and surely they must be based in some measure upon the rate of interest agreed in the contract. Some such damages cannot be held to be too remote, but I am not clear at all how to ascertain the true damages in a case like this. It is an unusual form of action though well known to the books: the contract is one which will never be specifically enforced, and the Court can only award damages for breach of such a contract, as was stated by the M. R. in Rogers v. Challis. 29, L. J. Ch. 340 upon the evidence of the amount of damages the plaintiff has sustained. In the view I take, it is not necessary to go further on this point; but I should like to emphasise what I said in the course of the trial as to evidence necessary. 'Plaintiffs who sue for damages for breach of a contract have to prove three things (1) the contract, (2) the breach and (3) the damages; and in considering the last matter, the measure of damages in each case must be considered.' When I was at the bar, it was usual for counsel to advise on evidence before a case went to trial: What Dr. Blake Odgers calls the most important piece of work a junior barrister has to do. This necessitated a full consideration of what had to be proved at the hearing, in view of the pleadings and any admission made. Had more attention been paid to this in the present case, I should not have been left so much in the air on the subject of damages as is now the case.

"But the main defense, and one on which I hold the defense has succeeded is that the plaintiff himself reopened the matter on 13th February after the defendants' acceptance and thereby gave the defendants an opportunity to escape. What happened when the plaintiff wrote demanding an official statement (i.e. one from the Company) of the rentals obtained from the Coy's properties, and stating that these rentals must sufficiently cover the interest on the loan or the sum of the loan will be reduced—"which please note."

"What is the real meaning of this? The original offer was "I will lend you so much money on terms"—answer: "I accept your terms"—Then comes the letter which can only be interpreted as "I withdraw that offer, and offer you the same amount provided your official list of rentals covers the interest on that amount; if not, I will only lend you such a sum as will be covered for its interest by those rentals"

"And to that letter the plaintiff attached great importance, for he writes again on 9th March, demanding an answer to it and referring to the loan as a "proposed" loan; and the letter of 16th March—which is the letter complained of—was written after a further verbal request for an answer.

"It may well be that the defendants could have held the plaintiff to his original offer; but they did not so. They correctly interpreted, as I hold, that letter to be a withdrawal of the old offer and a substitution of a new offer to which they did not agree: and to which they were in no wise bound to agree.

"There must be judgment for the defendants with costs.

Shipping Board Gives Schedules For Far East Service

Seattle, July 10.—Sailing schedules for the Shipping Board's line of passenger vessels which are to be placed in service between Seattle and Japan (direct), China and the Philippines, will provide for sailings from this port every 14 days. The first of five carriers building on the East Coast for the board's trans-Pacific passenger service is expected in Seattle in October, and will be followed by the other vessels at close intervals.

The liners will ply from the new public shipping terminal. Passenger offices are being established for the new Seattle Oriental Shipping Board line in all the principal cities in the Far East.

Bringing the first cargo of rubber to Seattle since the Pacific Steamship Company established its service between this port and Singapore early this year, the Admiral line freighter West Hartland arrived here recently from the Straits Settlements.

Since 1918, the record year in Seattle's export and import trade, most of Singapore's shipment of crude rubber has moved through Gulf and Atlantic ports. The Pacific Steamship Company early this year established a branch at Singapore to attempt to divert part of this trafic through the port of Seattle.

As a result of including Dairen as a port of call along with Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila and Singapore, the Pacific Steamship Company has opened a branch office there.

TWO BROTHELS SHUT

Charges against Emily Moore, 33 Kiangse Road, and D. Johnstone, 15 Socchow Road, for keeping brothels without licenses were withdrawn yesterday in the British Police Court after the defendants had closed their houses and made satisfactory arrangements with the police not to continue the business.

When the cases were called, defendants were not present and, after the Marshal had stated that the orders to attend had been served, Mr. G. W. King asked where the defendants were.

Mr. M. B. Brown—I appear for the defendants. I have them in the building if their presence is required.

The Magistrate—Of course it is. I must read the charge to them. They have got to be here. I have never heard of representation by a solicitor.

Mr. Brown then fetched the defendants in and the charge against Emily Moore was proceeded with.

Mr. R. C. Faithfull—I am instructed by the Commissioner of Police to ask your Worship to allow the charge to be withdrawn. The defendant has closed her house and made satisfactory arrangements with the police not to continue the business.

The Magistrate—Very well, the charge is dismissed. Does the same apply to Mrs. D. Johnstone?

Mr. Faithfull—Yes, sir. I am similarly instructed in her case.

The Magistrate—Dismissed.

London, July 29.—It has been officially announced that Archbishop Mannix will not be allowed to land in Ireland.

The Quaints

The Quaints rollicked and sang their way through a delightfully merry and tuneful opening act when they presented Program Four of their variety repertoire at the Lyceum Theater last evening. The second part dragged a bit but the marvelous voice of Grahame Doncaster, a clever skit called "Work" and Ernest Scovell's inimitable comedy saved the situation.

Throughout the performance was more than acceptable and deserved much better patronage than it received. The audience however made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers.

It was my first glimpse of the Quaints—and I hope to see them again. To an appetite jaded with the blatant noise and curly-girly frou-frou of the usual musical comedy and variety show the quaint Quaints come with a relish all their own. They have a tuneful, pretty, witty show that is clean to the core.

But, really, it would be advisable for them to read up a wee mite on the words of those American plantation melodies they sing so delightfully—but quite originally.

The same program is to be repeated this evening.

Nanchang Scared When Fighting Occurs Near City

(China Press Correspondence)

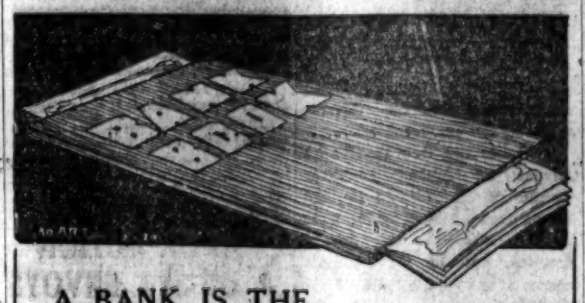
Nanchang, July 24.—The situation in Nanchang has been tense the past week. Many families fled to Kiukiang and many more wanted to go.

A band of Chang Ching-yao's troops was met by troops of the twelfth division, under Governor Chen Kwang-yuan and routed, after a bloody battle only ten miles from the city at Sunmi.

The reports brought to the city tell of 100 killed and 200 wounded.

Colonel Yao left yesterday to join his troops at Wu Hsin fifty li from Kiukiang, where more trouble with Chang Ching-yao's men is expected.

The scare now seems to have been effectually stilled and business is again as usual. Nanchang has a record of never having been entered by an invading army in all its 2,000 years of history, but when it comes to a show down the inhabitants seem to forget all about this precedent and begin to think of "safety-first."



A BANK IS THE SAFE PLACE TO 'HIDE" MONEY!

Put your money in the bank, where it is not only safe, but where it earns interest for you. The following clipping from a Cleveland newspaper shows the risk of keeping money in private hiding places:

HIS $54 BOILS AWAY

Man Hides Money in Coffee Pot, Then Forgets

CLEVELAND, O.—Eugene Para reported to police Monday night that $54 of his savings which he had hidden in 2 coffee pots in his restaurant, had been stolen. Last night he assured the officers that it was all a mistake.

He explained the money was in a small coffee bag inside the pot. Forgetting the money, he said he placed the pot on a steaming radiator.

The coffee boiled over and with it the $54. "I've found the bag and the money boiled like tea leaves," he said.

5-YEAR-OLD CHILD KILLED

Knocked Over By Auto; Dies On The Way To Hospital

Sung Fong-pao, a five year old boy, died after being knocked down by automobile No. 1831, driven by a Chinese chauffeur, Thursday evening at about 7:30 o'clock. The child was playing at the corner of Dent and Broadway when he was knocked over by the left front wheel of the car.

The Sikh constable arrested the chauffeur and had the child conveyed to St. Luke's Hospital, but the child died on his way.

INQUEST HELD

An inquest over the body was held yesterday before British Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Loh of the Mixed Court. A verdict of death through being struck by the car was returned. The chauffeur was ordered to furnish bail in $200 pending further investigation.

The Sikh constable gave evidence of being near when the accident occurred. The child tried to cross the road and partly turned and the car struck it heavily.

Sergeant MacIntosh of the Shanghai Municipal Police stated that he was on the scene shortly after the accident and found that the car had traveled 13 paces after the application of the brakes.

SLOWED DOWN

Miss Marjorie Schriam Nikoff, who was seated beside the chauffeur at the time of the accident stated that the car was trying to pass the boy who was crossing the road. The car slowed down and the boy turned back and ran into it. The car was travelling at the rate of about 15 miles an hour at the time.

The father of the last witness gave evidence, stating that he was inside the car, a limousine, and did not see the accident. The car was travelling at a low speed.

The chauffeur of the car, who also gave evidence, said that he had been in his present employment for four years. He tried to avoid striking the boy with the result that skidded 13 or 14 yards after he had applied the brakes. The left front wheel struck the child.

MORE VICTIMS

Two more accidents were recorded yesterday. A car struck a Chinese on Avenue Edward VII in front of the office of the Millard's Review and made him unconscious for a considerable time. He was conveyed to hospital. A foreigner was knocked down on The Bund and another had received minor injuries.

Sternheim Play Hissed In Vienna

Premiere Of "Die Kassette" Interruptel Several Times

Vienna, June 12.—The Vienna premier of Carl Sternheim's "Die Kassette" in the Burg Theater Thursday night was characterised by manifestations of disapproval by the audience to a degree never before known in that theater.

Several times the performance was interrupted by hissing and other manifestations against the play and Herr Heine, director of the theater, was greeted with shouts of disgust at the end of the performance.

The audience was indignant at the lascivious and inartistic style of Sternheim's newest drama.

"UP-TO-THE-MINUTE" MEN

are those who keep physically and mentally 'fit' by judicious exercise, by the avoidance of excesses, and by watching that the system is always clean and in perfect running order. To such men, and women too, Pinkettes are of the utmost value, because they prevent and cure constipation, that enemy to 'fitness' which few can entirely avoid without cathartic aid.

The perfect laxatives, Pinkettes, assure daily regularity, cure biliousness, "liver," sick headaches, flatulence, and the foul breath and coated tongue arising therefrom. They prevent diarrhoea and dysentery and relieve Piles. Of dealers and at 60 cents the vial, post free, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

On The Roof of the World

The breeze on the roof of the World affects the fur of the Tibetan Fox. The result is long heavy lustrous Fur. The locality here in some places more than 17,000 feet above the level of the sea, produces fox coats of long dense downy fur and over-hair of exquisite fineness and beauty, and in lustreless of great value. Only the prime skins are selected for sale and no skin sent out less than 45 inches in length pelt and tail. You can have one of these Tibetan Fox skins by sending a Japanese Post Office Money order for $25 to Mr. Elly Widler, Ta Tsing-lu, Szechwan Province, and he will immediately mail you one of these specially selected Tibetan Fox Skins.

EXPECT 20,000 U.S. TOURISTS

French Plan To Entertain Crowds With Average Of $700 Each To Spend

Paris, June 12.—Fifteen thousand rooms are available daily in Paris for American tourists, according to M. Rougier, president of Paris Hotelkeepers' Syndicate. He estimates the number of American tourists who will come to France this year at no less than 200,000. The accommodations for them will be supplemented by private apartments and single rooms, which are being mobilised in French homes.

Thus it is apparent that while persons who live in Paris permanently are face to face with a housing crisis, Americans and American dollars will receive the same welcome they got before the war.

Hotel prices have advanced only from 20 to 100 percent since 1914, M. Rougier said. This allows for a substantial margin of profit for Americans, who will benefit by the exchange rates.

"Even a 100 percent advance would not be excessive," M. Rougier said. "We are paying between 300 and 400 percent more to hotel servants than we paid before the war. Laundry prices have advanced as much as 1,200 percent, and house furnishings are sky-high. The only chance we have to break even is to raise wine prices, and in this the hotels are no higher than the better class of cafes and restaurants."

Two billion francs is the sum the French estimate Americans will spend here this year. This is almost double what they spent here in 1913. The French National Tourist Office has completed extensive inquiries in the United States, and says that the average American purse holds $700 for the voyage, less than 5 percent of which will be spent for railroad fare from the ports to the battlefields.

Senator Fernand Davis is directing the tourist activities of the Government, and has succeeded in obtaining the consent of 90 percent of the hotel keepers to list with him the prices of their rooms during the season and to agree to retain a certain number of them for American use.

French agencies also are cooperating and the pressure on the hotels at the height of the season will be relieved by directing traffic from France to the French colonies in North Africa and not only in developing Moroccan centers but in spreading there propaganda about French enterprises.

The position of the French Government in connection with the housing difficulties is better appreciated when it is considered that when the war broke out in 1914 permits had been granted to construct 2,000 new houses. This year permits have dropped to 130. Moreover the population of Paris has increased by about 100,000 persons from the devastated regions, who are renting houses here now, while the number of furnished rooms available has increased by only 15,000.

This throws the burden of caring for tourists on the hotels, many of which are unable to renew their leases, especially those in the central district, where banking interests are taking up all available locations.

The hotel syndicates call attention to the fact that many suburban hotels offer advantages to tourists, especially as they are quiet and not costly, while regular automobile service between them and Paris shopping districts and theaters remove the only possible objection Americans might have in regard to them.

Good Roads Move In French Highways

Government To Create Department And Allowance

Paris, June 12.—Warned by the criticism of American and other tourists that the French highways are no longer superior to those offered to automobilists in Germany and Italy, the French Government is considering the creation of a Department of Roads and an annual allowance for the upkeep of roads leading to battlefields and watering places that form centers of tourist attraction.

While the budget does not provide sufficient for this purpose the Office Nationale des Touristes and the Touring Club de France contend that the appropriation of a small sum for use on the main highways would provide millions income yearly, thereby relieving the Ministry of Finance of all responsibility and overcoming the objections of M. Marsal, the Finance Minister.

POWER TO BEGIN WAR RENOUNCED BY KING OF ITALY

Victor Emmanuel III. Gives New Concession In Bill To Curb His Rights

IS A POPULAR MONARCH

Only Recently Relinquished Privilege To Pardon And Commute Sentences

Rome, June 12.—King Victor Emmanuel III., of his own free will and desire, is renouncing another royal privilege. The most important bill which will be discussed in the next parliamentary session, with excellent chances of becoming law, deals with the transferring to the legislative body of the royal prerogative of declaring war, making peace and signing pacts of alliances. The bill was not presented to Parliament by one of its members but by the Prime Minister, who was asked to do so by the King himself.

Only a short time ago the King renounced, in favor of the Ministry his privilege of granting pardons and commuting sentences.

On the surface the bill in question represents the most significant amendment ever made to the Italian Constitution which was granted to the Italian people in the year 1848 by Charles Albert, the great grandfather of the present King. As a matter of fact, however, this amendment will take away from the King only a privilege which he has scarcely ever exercised.

ALWAYS OBTAINED ADVICE

None of the three sovereigns modern Italy has had ever declared war without the previous advice and consent of Parliament. Whenever they signed peace treaties or pacts of alliances they always did so at the behest of the ministers of state, who had the confidence of Parliament and the advice and assent if not of all the legislators at least of the leaders of the various parliamentary groups.

In 1915 when the present King declared war on Austria-Hungary he was only complying (some say a little reluctantly) with the demands of the nation and of the representatives of the people in both houses. The Versailles and St. Germain peace treaties were ratified by a royal decree, but only at the request and insistence of the Cabinet.

The article which will be modified by this amendment is the most important in the Italian Constitution, for it sums up the prerogatives of the King. It now reads as follows:

"The King alone has executive powers. He is the Supreme Chief of the Nation and commands all the land and sea forces. He declares war and makes treaties of alliances and commerce, making announcements thereof to the two Houses as soon as the interest and safety of the State will permit him. Those treaties which will imply expenditures from the public treasury or modifications of the national territory will not be effective until the consent of both the Legislative Houses has been obtained."

KING'S POPULARITY GROWS

Victor Emmanuel, who was always very popular and who during the war was the idol of the Italian soldiers, on account of his courage and his sharing the privations of the men at the front, is becoming the object of greater affection every day. Last year, seeing that many mutilated and otherwise disabled soldiers were homeless, he turned over to them thirty-five magnificent villas and palaces, with large tracts of land and gardens, representing about nine-tenths of his private possessions. "His only desire," people often say, "is to increase our comfort, to make us freer and happier."

Replaces Calvary Germans Wrecked

Major Emerson, U. S. A., Restores Historic Shrine In War Wasted Melicocq

Paris, June 12.—Between Compiegne and Noyon lies the ruined village of Melicocq, where, on June 10, 1918, the second German advance toward Paris was hurled back and the road opened for the Allies in the direction of Soissons.

On the outskirts of Melicocq is a hamlet known as Croix Ricard, and today, as in old times, it is marked by a Calvary—a new one. It is well known that the Germans never missed an opportunity to destroy such a shrine, and the one which stands in Croix Ricard today replaces the old one which the Germans destroyed. This new Calvary was erected by Major Emerson of the United States Army and Mrs. Emerson, and in appreciation of their act of generosity, the villagers there have placed a bronze tablet at the base of it whereon is inscribed the title and the names of "the American benefactors."

The Calvary is a faithful reproduction of the historic one at Croix Ricard which the Germans destroyed. On a stone pedestal is an oak cross whereon is a full size figure of the Christ. A marble tablet at the base tells the story of Croix Ricard—a striking recital.

"It was here, after a fierce engagement, in June, 1918, that by marvellous deeds of heroism and at the cost of heaviest sacrifice, soldiers of the Third Army definitely stopped the enemy's march on Paris," it says. "You who pass, uncover your head."

There are other tablets which honor the individual regiments which participated in the battle there and individual heroes. Also there is an honor roll of sons of Melicocq, who gave their lives for the cause.

Dedication services were held last Thursday, when General Humbert, commander of the Third Army, was received by the Mayor of Melicocq, the schoolmaster and a little group of villagers who have returned to the shell torn region. No less striking than the dedication ceremony was the mass, which was recited by Father Lagnaux, representing the Bishop of Noyon, in a corrugated iron shed, which is now used temporarily as a chapel. Silently the villagers wended their way to the new causeway, which was blessed in the presence of the heroic troops who fought there.

The procession then proceeded to a shady cypress grove, where sleep a thousand men who fell at Melicocq in the battles there. The villagers then returned along the lanes which are still marked by shell holes, with heaps of barbed wire showing above the grain fields on either side the lanes to the rude shelters constructed since the armistice, where, despite the humility of the surroundings, no more impressive example was to be found of French gratitude for American friendship than the devoted admiration of the people of Melicocq for the donors of the Calvary of Croix Ricard.

War Notes From Chinese Papers

It is reported that Mr. Liang Shih-yi, who is now in Canton, will be appointed chief Northern peace delegate to succeed General Wang I-tang.

Little Hsu and Ting Shih-yuan have succeeded in escaping from Charhar. They are now taking refuge at the Legation quarters.

In the search of the residences of the Anfuites in Peking, a large quantity of opium was found in the home of General Wu Kwan-hsin.

The gates of the capital are open daily for three hours only.

Marshal Tuan has delegated Wu Shih-lien to proceed to call on General Wang Shih-chen and invite him to be the mediator of the present dispute. Wang was formally Tsao Kun's superior and is best fitted for the work.

Wang Shih, managing director of the Kung Yen Pao of Peking was arrested at Shan Fan Chiao, Peking, Tuesday while attempting to leave the capital with documents of the two houses of Parliament. Wang was instructed to ship these documents, which were packed in four boxes, to Shanghai by General Wang I-tang, the Northern peace delegate.

The status of Fu Yu-feng, Anfu Minister of Education, is being discussed and a general meeting of the teachers in Peking to oust him has been called.

Dr. C. C. Wang, the noted railway expert, will succeed Ting Shih-yuan as managing director of the Peking-Hankow Railway.

Tuchun Li Shun of Kiangsu has drawn $40,000 from the funds of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway for military expenses. He announced that he would return the money when the situation is settled.

The Cabinet has telegraphed to Chi Yao-lin, Civil Governor of Kiangsu, to inform the Shanghai local bodies that there is no truth in the report that Chang Hsun, the monarchist, will be appointed Tuchun of Anhui.

General Li Shun, Tuchun of Kiangsu, has delegated a Mr. Yang with an autographed letter to see General Ho Fung-lin, Defense Commissioner of Shanghai, to dispel the misunderstandings created by certain rumors about General Li's attitude towards Chekiang and Anhui, according to the Hsin Shen Pao.

After consulting General Ho, Mr. Yang will proceed to Chekiang to interview General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Tuchun of the province. His mission is also to reaffirm the friendly relations existing between the Kiangsu and Chekiang Tuchuns.

Britain To Extract Nitric Acid From Air

Private Company Will Take Over Plant Near Stockton

London, June 12.—England soon will begin to produce in large quantities ammonia and nitric acid made with the aid of the nitrogen from the air. A large factory for this production begun during the war by the Government at Billingham-on-Tees, near Stockton, was completed recently. It will now be transferred to private interests for operation. It is the first factory erected in England for the production of ammonia by this process, which was invented by the Germans and has since been improved upon by the research chemists attached to the staff of the Ministry of Munitions.

The company which will take over the factory will reimburse the nation for the money already spent and will invest new capital. The whole transaction represents an investment of between $20,000,000 and $35,000,000.

BOLSHEVIKI AND REGULARS OPEN SERIES TODAY

Shanghai To Try Conclusions With Rivals Lacking Gill And Woods

The first game of the series between the Bolsheviki and the Regulars will be played at the Race Course grounds, at 3:30 p.m. today. This should be one of the real games of the season, as the rivalry between these two teams is very much to the "a la mustard."

The Regulars have been weakened by the loss of Sammy Woods and "Lefty" Gill, both dependable stand-bys, and it remains to be seen, whether or not they can down their opponents lacking these men.

Following is the probable lineup of the two teams:

Regulars	Bolsheviki
Ladd, 3b.	Merrill, p.
Porterfield, 2b.	Hopkins, 2b.
Bills, ss.	Claire, 3b.
Wilhoit, 1b.	Glauque, ss.
Stovall, of.	Tinkham, 1b.
Smith, of.	Held, c.
Holman, c.	Pung, of.
Lilley, of.	Covington, of.
Terry, p.	Davis, of.

Batting averages of the players for games with the following teams—Elcano Internationals, California Glee Club, three games, U. S. S. Elliott, and U. S. Destroyer Lee.

JUST DOPE

The U. S. Destroyer Lee and the Bolsheviki will tangle in a ball game at the Race Course grounds Sunday at 3:30 p.m. These two teams should put up a very interesting game, as the Bolsheviki are playing their first game of the season, against an outside club, and the Sailor boys are bound to avenge their defeat at the hands of the Regulars, last Wednesday.

* * *

All Regulars will watch this game from the grandstand.

"Old Faithful" Cy Wilhoit had a fine day in the field in the last game against the Glee Club on Thursday, accepting twelve chances without an error. Cy is not hitting as of old, just at present, but it 's a safe bet that he will be up amongst the leaders before the end of the season.

* * *

"Skipper" Bills gathered a brace of base blows for himself in Thursday's game, but had a little trouble in the field.

* * *

Merrill is playing a very fine game at second base, and if he keeps on hitting the ball, as he is at present, Sammy Woods will not be missed. This young man has wonderful speed and a fine arm. All he needs to do now is to take the game a little seriously, and he will go to the top fast.

* * *

Holman caught a fine game and when asked where he got all the "pep" said: "The kind of pitching that Claire put up would give any man 'pep.' He had the ball right where I wanted it all day."

Star Outfielder Making Good As American League Pilot

Tris Speaker, for years the star of the Cleveland Indians, is making good as manager of the club. He is not only showing brilliant ability as a field marshal, but he is playing the same flashy brand of baseball that has won him rank as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, defensive outfielder in the game. Speaker's Indians are playing bang-up baseball. They are fighting for the leadership of the American League and are looked upon by many of the baseball critics as the possible winners of the 1920 campaign. This photograph of Speaker, made several days ago, shows the outfield-manager cracking one out.

Clay Pigeon Club

Owing to the rain last week, the Ladies' Day was postponed and will take place tomorrow. Shooting will start promptly at 4:30 p.m. and lady guests are requested to be on the grounds not later than 4:45 as the draw for their champions will have to be done before this time.

Tea and refreshments will be served, and there will also be three prizes for the ladies.

In addition to the "Delaware" Cup, the "Anonymous" Cup has been presented, the conditions being 40 birds from "Leggett" trap, and 10 birds extra from the center stand.

Given a fine day it is anticipated that there will be a large gathering of competitors and spectators.

Cricket

The Shanghai Cricket Club will play the "Returned Men" today on the S.C.C. Ground at 1:30 p.m. Teams:

S. C. C.—S. J. Deeks, H. W. P. McMeekin, Rev. C. E. Spencer, W. S. Read, H. E. Murfet (Capt.), J. R. Hinton, J. M. Pearson, J. R. Robertson, Lieut Harrison, R. N., A. H. Leslie, Pay Master B. Hamnett, R. N. Reserve, C. Knight.

Returned Men.—A. W. Hayward, L. Wainwright, D. W. Leach, H. W. Allison, Dr. W. E. O'Hara, W. N. Hansell, J. Quayle, T. W. R. Wilson, H. B. Ollerdessen, T. D. Brotherton, H. E. Jones.

S. C. C. 2 XI vs. S. R. C. 2nd XI

S.C.C. 2nd XI will play the S.R.C. 2nd XI. on the S.R.C., ground, at 1:30. Teams:

Urges America To Stop Japanese

(Reuter's Service)

Louisville, Ky., July 29.—Congressman King Swope, of Kentucky, member of the House of Representatives Immigration Committee has issued a statement on the subject of the Pacific Coast immigration question, in which he says:

"The United States has reached the point where we should not permit any unassimilable race to fill up our Pacific coast States or any other States. Privilege of entry of any and all immigrants should be predicated upon their ability and desire to become real, loyal and patriotic Americans."

RHEIMS FEARS LOSING ART BY AMERICAN PLAN

Opposes Construction Of A Far West City On Her Ancient Ruins

WOULD PRESERVE BEAUTY

George B. Ford's Project Returned To City Council For Further Consideration

Paris, June 12.—Alarmed by the possibility that Rheims will lose her ancient historic beauty if the reconstruction plan proposed by George B. Ford, an American town planning expert, is followed residents of the martyred city have raised cries of protest to such good effect that Mr. Ford's plans have been refused and returned to the Rheims Council for further consideration.

The greatest complaint against Mr. Ford's ingenious modernity is that he has tried to reconstruct "a far West city" on Rheims's historic ruins and ruthlessly substituted wide streets and double street car lines where stood Gothic facades and royal palaces once dear to tourists.

Mr. Ford served with the American Red Cross during the war. As soon as the Rheims Council asked architects to submit proposals for the rebuilding of Rheims he passed months studying old plans and visiting the ruins and finally evolved the scheme which residents of Rheims declare will require fifty years to execute, besides costing millions of dollars.

GERMANS MUST PAY EXPENSE

Of course, the Germans are expected to pay the expenses connected with the rebuilding of Rheims, but that city is beginning to wonder whether it would not be better to rebuild on the old lines and avoid a disastrous deficit if the Germans succeed in evading the reparation clauses in the Versailles treaty.

The fact is that Rheims is three-fourths destroyed, but here and there a noble ruin stands which marks the city's intellectual and religious history. The German vandalism, the long suffering inhabitants of Rheims declare, was incomplete. Why, then, they ask, should a new Ford vandalism be countenanced and Rheims treated as a "dead city?" Moreover, the street foundations were hardly touched by the constant bombardment, and failure to consider this would result in the waste of millions of francs, with nothing to show for the expense save a modern, symmetrical city which would fall forever to have any appeal for visitors.

Mr. Ford, however, was not alone in failing to appreciate the natives' love for their ancient landmarks. Several French architects made the same mistake, and while providing for the reconstruction of the Cathedral wiped out structures such as the Maison des Musicians, the exterior decorations of which were carefully removed and stored in Paris when the bombardment of Rheims began.

TOO MUCH ICONOCLASM

Mr. Ford proposed tearing down the walls of the Museum of Beaux Arts, notwithstanding the fact that the sculptured entrances and courtyard are almost intact, and thereby he aroused the opposition of the Society of Friends of Ancient Rheims.

"What next?" they protested. "Rheims must not be a duplicate of Chicago or St. Louis, with 'skyscrapers' and unartistic public monuments."

Even the small property owners now are against the American idea. To be sure, house foundations have been over-thrown, but the materials are there, and with slight expense and Government assistance in obtaining builders they could soon restore their residential streets to approximately their old time charm.

Until the Rheims Council has obtained the desired revision of Mr. Ford's plans or Mr. Ford is better acquainted with French ideas and submits a less radical rebuilding plan the people of that city insist that they will not face the project of having their land expropriated and will live squatters' lives in wooden shacks and improvised dugouts.

Objections, however, are centered only against the rebuilding of the "old city" and Mr. Ford is commended by the French for improvements which he suggested in the suburban districts, where warehouses, railroad stations, dock facilities and rectangular streets would give an American atmosphere to new Rheims, which survivors insist must not lose any of her traditional characteristics.

PARIS MUSEUM FOR JOAN OF ARC RELICS

City Council Suggests Use Of Hotel de Sens For The Purpose

Paris, June 12.—Will the ancient Hotel de Sens, home of archbishops, queens, nobles and lesser dignitaries be submitted to the sacrilege of having its halls filled with American office furniture, typewriters and beribboned stenographers? A large section of the Paris council is indignantly protesting against the project to use the hotel as quarters for the Department of Public Works, and as an alternative and more artistic solution suggest the establishment of a Jeanne d'Arc museum there for the preservation of all documents and relics pertaining to the Virgin of Domremy, who was canonised in Rome last month.

The museum for religious and patriotic collection is said to have been assured of the financial support of the Museum Lanteime. The museum, if devoted to Jeanne d'Arc, would be unique in one sense. It would be absolutely lacking in any relic directly connected with the life of the French saint. Jeanne's ashes were thrown broadcast over the Seine, her weapons confiscated and lost track of during the generation the name of which was anathematised by French rulers. The Cathedral of Rouen possesses a fragment of a letter supposed to have been written by Jeanne, but in view of the peasant maid's limited education the authenticity even of this document is doubted by French experts.

Nevertheless, two thousand volumes are said to have been written about Jeanne's dreams and career, while the religious records of miracles worked in her name would suffice to fill a large section of the proposed museum. The Papal ceremonies and celebrations throughout the world of her recognition as one of the glorious company of martyrs and her subsequent elevation to sanctity will provide a collection of many thousand photographs which French societies are now collecting.

The Hotel de Sens stands as it was constructed in the fourteenth century by Tristan de Salazar as the residence of the Archbishop of Sens, where Queen Margot sought refuge. It resisted attacks in the Middle Ages, during the Renaissance and during the revolutions, and was sold to the city of Paris for a mere song just before the war through the inability of private owners to pay accumulated taxes.

Siccawei Weather Reports

29.—Very smooth gradient in the whole of the Far East. The principal center of the typhoon passes between the Marians and the Bonin, moving to NNE; the other approaches Formosa and the Meiaco Simas with no signs of violence yet. Very variable breezes mingled, with calms, along our coasts. Oppressive heat at Shanghai and in the N. No news from the Valley, as usual.

30.—Weather fine, but misty and very damp. Light Southeasterly breezes with calms. The pressure decreases below the normal level.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEPPA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PREILER M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children, in fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Coal Market

In their report dated July 29, Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows:

Japan Coal.—There have been some inquiries on our local market from Native dealers but so far no business has resulted although, if exchange keeps up as it has been doing recently, we may expect to see some new business put through shortly.

As regards the inquiries from Europe—these have finally had to be dropped mainly on account of the difficulty in finding suitable shipping facilities.

Fushun Coal.—There have been numerous inquiries for this coal from native dealers and, besides the shipments over-seas mentioned in our last issue, some cargoes have recently been shipped to Shanghai and Outports.

These mines have now quite recovered from the disasters which overtook them three years ago and have even improved on their former working capacity so that it is expected they will soon be able to export in larger quantities than they have been doing for a long time.

Kaiping Coal.—Owing to the political situation in the North shipments are somewhat interferred with consequently arrivals have been fewer and stocks very much reduced.

Rubber Prices

Messrs. R. N. Truman and Co. have received the following telegraphic report from their Singapore agents in connection with the weekly auctions held on Wednesday, July 28, 1920.

Average price realised:

No. 1 Smoked Sheet $0.63 per pound equivalent to 1s. 5⅝d. ex warehouse Singapore.

No. 1 Crepe $0.71 per pound equivalent to 1s. 8d. ex warehouse Singapore.

Market weak. Offered 772 tons; sold 444 tons.

Freight Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows in their report for week ending July 29:

The situation in our Outward Freight markets is as follows:

To United Kingdom and Continent.—There are few signs as yet of an improved demand from any quarter. Conference rates of freight on beans and sesamum seeds have meantime been made "Nett," besides being materially reduced, and it is possible this may bring about a revival in trade as some inquiries are being received by shippers from Europe; in the meanwhile, the berth is amply supplied with tonnage.

To United States via Pacific and via Panama and Suez.—Except for a little tea per Mail steamers via Pacific there is nothing much offering on any of these berths and there seems to be little prospect of any improvement setting in the near future.

Coastwise.—There is little or no change to report since last writing due in some respect to the state of the political situation in the North; business has not been made any easier by the interruptions in telegraphic communication with the North and merchants are therefore unable in most cases to negotiate any new business; at the moment, however, the outlook is more hopeful and it is to be hoped that business will resume its normal aspect at no distant date.

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows in their report dated July 31:

China Cotton.—During the week under review no changes as to prices transpired such having remained practically the same as during the previous period as far as spots are concerned there being very little business done for near deliveries, however, there have been some commitments for November, December and such were done on a basis about Tls. 1.50 lower than the prices ruling last week. The tendency so far for distant futures is more for lower figures while that for immediate requirements still continues steady.

The weather, now being experienced, which is ideally favorable to the cotton plant corroborates the expectation of a good and healthy crop which combined with the influx of Indian cotton at a high silver exchange may be said to have created in the trade a bearish sentiment for prices on the New Season's yield and while such a view may be indulged in temporarily some allowance should be made for militating contingencies which adversely change the complexion of the situation and for that reason we would advise purchases on every suitable break. Tone of the market steady.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION
No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams incurred through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24a Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

By order,
N. O. LIDDELL,
Secretary.

The German-Polish-Bolshevist Crisis

THE cablegrams bringing latest developments in the Russo-Polish war are more than disquieting. They are alarming. If the Bolshevik army, now commanded by Brussiloff and other Tsarist officers, is refusing to obey the orders of the Soviet Government the whole European situation is thrown into chaos. Anything may happen.

A few days ago the Soviet Government by request of the Allies in session at Spa agreed to an armistice with Poland and a line was fixed under this armistice arrangement beyond which the Bolshevik army was not to advance. While it is true that the armistice was not to be effective until July 30, it was the understanding that fighting would cease at once and that the troops on both sides would be moved to the positions assigned to them.

But Brussiloff is paying no heed to the orders from Moscow. Already his army has crossed the agreed upon line and is marching as fast as it can towards the German frontier. It may be, of course, that Brussiloff has received no orders from Moscow and that Lenin and Trotsky are preparing a big surprise for the Allies. The Copenhagen despatch, quoting the report of a Magdeburg newspaper, seems to support this view. This despatch says that "an agreement has been signed between the Soviet and German Independent Socialists and Spartacists providing for the proclamation of a Bolshevik republic at Koenigsberg, Danzig, Breslau and other towns, immediately the Soviet troops have crossed the German frontier and also for the formation of a Red German army, under the Russian General Toutschoff, the establishment of revolutionary tribunals and communist municipal commissions and the nationalisation of industry, the Russian army maintaining order and protecting the Proletariat."

Another view is provided by the Berlin despatch via London which says that the Russian officers are disinclined to cease hostilities, adding that since the Russian Nationalists (those opposing the Soviet Government) have failed to win Allied help, they have established an organisation in Berlin and are endeavoring to obtain the co-operation of German reactionaries (the Kapp outfit et al) "who welcome such an alliance, hoping thereby to regain power and acquire political and economic predominance in Russia."

Now the situation in Germany is this: The Ebert Government is in control and the Reichstag, as reported in today's despatches, has just accepted the terms of the Spa agreement by an overwhelming vote. The parties opposed to the present German government are made up of the old Militarist group, led by Dr. Kapp and others, on the one hand and by the Spartacists on the other hand. These two groups politically are far apart. They are as far apart as Brussiloff and the Bolshevists were a few months ago.

The truth of the old saw that politics makes strange bedfellows was never better illustrated than it is by what has just happened in Russia and what may, as easily, happen in Germany tomorrow. The advancing Bolshevists are commanded by Tsarists to whom an alliance with the German Kaiserists would appeal as perfectly natural. The Spartacists in Germany, of course, would welcome an alliance with the Bolshevik armies and government. The thing that has already happened in Russia, precipitated by the Polish aggression, may as easily happen in Germany because of resentment arising from the Berlin Government's acceptance of the Spa terms.

If the Militarists and Spartacists of Germany and the Tsarists and Bolshevists of Russia join forces and begin establishing soviet governments in Germany as implied by the Copenhagen message, how will the Allies oppose them? The Allies, it seems to us, will have to ally themselves with the present German government and actively support it in driving these forces out of Germany and Poland, as otherwise the whole Peace Treaty may go by the board and Bolshevism continue its advance in Europe.

In any case, if the despatches accurately reflect the situation, prompt action by the Allies has become imperative and the only course that seems to promise success is that of active co-operation with the present German government, which recently, and especially by the vote in the Reichstag reported today, has shown a sincere desire to carry out the terms of the Peace Treaty.

MISS KWEI'S LETTER ANSWERED

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Miss T. L. Kwei's slam on the so-called "foreign educated" boys and girls is certainly one of the hopeful signs of the newly awakened spirit of Nationalism. It seems to me that it does not really "differ from that developed by the recent McTyeire School controversy." The phenomena of such students or returned students can only be ascribed to the fault of the education itself. There is no gainsaying the fact that most missionary-conducted schools educate our boys and girls away from the atmosphere of their domestic life. The transplanted trees do not seem to bear good fruit. Foreign teachers appear to their Chinese followers as a favored type of humanity. So the boys and girls think that if they can act and speak like these foreigners, they become ipso facto a privileged class. They no longer feel as they should toward their elders and do their part to their family as a whole. In short, they have been led to see too much of what they ought to get out of life but too little of what they ought to give to it.

Readers, you may say that the above may apply to those educated at the missionary schools but not to those educated abroad. I say it does. Because the returned students who had not been well grounded in whatever is good and righteous in the old tradition before they went abroad are those who are apt to copy blindly from the west.

I do not wish to disparage the missionaries and their schools. On the whole they have supplied a great need in introducing many things that were unknown before in China. Oh! how I wish they had taken more consideration of things Chinese! But this is not their fault. It is ours. By this time we ought to take up the lead ourselves and show our foreign friends what we should do to make our students more useful to their homes and to our country as a whole.

We should set up a school for boys and girls (for I believe in co-education) where they will learn the fundamentals of our own civilisation along with whatever is good in the Western. The boys will be made to appreciate that the love for their parents and for their home does not have to be sacrificed when they learn the new duty of patriotism toward the country. The girls should not be permitted to study any foreign language until they have a pretty good command of the mother tongue. They ought to be required to do a certain amount of their household work and report to the school for credit. For instance they should be able to tell offhand that 4 catty means 16 liang and what the market price for a picul of rice is. To counteract the influence of the motion pictures, they must be told that the average western woman living in her own country does cooking, mending, scrubbing and shopping for her household. She is not at all like the belle of the movies who seems to have nothing to do except to dance and make love.

Hoping that this letter will bring out more enlightened opinion on this all-important question whether our youngsters are being foreignised to the disaster of our homes and country, I am, yours truly,

A RETURNED STUDENT.

July 30, 1920.

MR. RANKIN'S ADVICE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—Please allow me to say that I very much approve the spirit of the letter of Miss T. L. Kwei, carried by you in your editorial columns today. And still further in this direction, it is difficult for my mind to realise how a student who is worthy of receiving a foreign education can leave China at the present time, when the country is in great distress, with no government, and few, all too few leaders who are willing to serve the country unselfishly, and when the country is going to destruction so rapidly that one may well question whether the students who are now going abroad can have any reasonable hope that there will be any home left for them to return to after they shall have spent a few years in foreign universities.

And yet we have a large number of students scheduled to leave for America on August 23. Presumably, almost every one of these has already received a collegiate education, and now has the fundamentals that are needed for a life of active service. That it would be very nice to study longer, no one would question. But is it not true that China needs service, and that she requires it now, not ten years, nor five years nor even one year from now? And has not China enough trained young men and women even now, to organise their country, if only they would rise up and assume the responsibility of doing it? And if China's young men and young women lack the patriotism and moral stamina that will cause them to do this, would additional education be of any substantial value?

This is written by one who has great respect and love for the people of China. But has there not come a time for Chinese men to be men, and for Chinese women to be women, and for both to assume responsibility? Is not this continual disposition to rely upon some one else to do the work, likely to weary the world to the extent that other nations may soon conclude that if the work of organising China is to be done (and since China is a part of the world, it must be done), they, the other nations, must do it?

Is there not apparent a disposition on the part of many of China's young men and young women to feel that because they have received some education, some special place, or some particular position should be ready for them, else they are not called upon to work for, or to initiate and try to carry out plans having to do with the making of a government, and so they are content to assist in giving a few (charitable?) theatricals and dances, and deceive themselves into thinking that their obligations to their country are satisfied? Ought not our education have taught us that the world does not make reservations for special individuals or at least, only in rare instances, and then usually the occupant of the place reserved is not worthy of it? No one has heard of reservations being made for bandit chieftains. But they have found, and seem to be almost the sole possessors of places of leadership in China. One feels sorrowfully driven to ask if this is the only type of citizenship in China that possesses qualities of initiative and leadership. Respectfully,

CHAS. W. RANKIN.

July 30, 1920.

THE HALF-EDUCATED

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: Miss T. L. Kwei's opinion, as quoted in your editorial today, is true of some boy students who are only half-educated in things western. Those who have been well educated in China or some foreign country never exclude themselves from the rest of their family. Go and see a home like Dr. T. H. Lee's or Dr. C. T. Wang's or Dr. Fong F. Sec's, and you will know that a really western educated Chinese tries very hard to improve his home—to give his home very much happiness. Indeed, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Fong speak English, but Mrs. Wang does not.

I don't believe many returned students put on foreign clothes at home. Nor do I believe they speak English at home and in society. Those students whom Miss Kwei has in mind are perhaps raw returned students or new graduates of middle schools. As to divorce, I do not know what Miss Kwei means. In China, really we do not have many divorce cases. With one exception, I have never known a returned student or a graduate of a Chinese college who divorced his wife.

I wish Miss Kwei and others to know that most misery lies in homes that have members educated in the wrong way or not educated at all. Yours sincerely, TSEU YIH-SAN.

MARY'S LAMB

Dear Mutt,—This hot weather is the cause of any amount of trouble. In the first place people are forgetting to take out licenses for their dogs; then Domino sends a pack of writers on a wild chase for limericks, and now he asks for angles on Mary's little lamb. I saw Mr. Jiggs today and mentioned the lamb contest, and he asks me to change the name by a syllable, and here is his version:

Maggie wrote a little note
To Count On-Him-I-Dote;
Dinty said "Give him a wife
And get his blooming goat."

Mary had a lap doggie,
She called the trifle "Whizz,"
It followed her to a cafe
And drank all Hubby's fizz.
Hubby howled in anger
His howl was heard in Paz
But Mary said quite sweetly
"We Shanghai wives must Jazz."

Fortune Deals Strangely With Dmitri, Slayer Of Rasputin

British Officer Throws Intimate Light On Personality Of Grand Duke Who Figured In One Of Russia's Greatest Sensations

BY LIEUT. NEGLEY FARSON, R. A. F.

Three cities figure in this story: Petrograd, Cairo and London; and one man, a royal Russian, the young Grand Duke, who, with Prince Yousupof, rid Russia and the world of one of its greatest blackguards—Rasputin! For that act alone he deserves the good will of every thinking man, Russian or otherwise.

When I first saw him it was in the winter of 1915, in Petrograd, when he was a Darling of the Gods. Always immensely popular, his military presence and youth made him the idol of the Russians when the great war plunged his country into that hysteria of patriotism that caused the wearer of each and every sword to be looked upon as a hero. One heard a shrill whistle on the Nevskie and turned to see a huge green Renault car come dashing past, a slim, pale faced officer at the wheel, and the traffic bolting good naturedly in all directions. At tea in the Astoria, or at the Ballet, always the same impeccably dressed, smart officer; brown eyes, an imperious nose, and an air of being at peace with himself and the world in general. People said: "There goes the next Tsar of Russia. The little Tsarivitch is too sick to come to the throne—but Dmitri—ah! what a Tsar he will be!"

One day, when I was sitting in the Hotel Astoria with some flying officers, he came in and I was perfunctorily introduced to him. He inquired, politely, in excellent English, how I liked Petrograd, made a few commonplace remarks to the other officers and passed on leaving me with the impression of there being rather a forceful personality behind that debonnaire manner of his. It would be impossible to explain how I acquired this decided view of his character in the few minutes conversation that I had with him, but somehow I sensed it very strongly; just as you will take a strong liking or hatred for a person the very first time you lay eyes on him.

That night, in conversation with another foreigner, I voiced the opinion that Dmitri had a lot in him.

But the man replied: "Why doesn't he go to the front then? Aren't there enough boudoir officers around Petrograd without his becoming one?"

I found it impossible to refute this argument and said no more, but in my heart of hearts I felt that I was right in my surmise.

Then, in Sweden, two years later I read of the death of Rasputin and how Dmitri and Yousupof had killed him. I was overjoyed and all the Russians in Stockholm were in a frenzy of pleasure. "There," one of them said to me enthusiastically, "word of God, there is a man!"

I came back to Petrograd; Dmitri and Yousupof had been banished to the Caucasus; and the revolution arose and swept everything before. Then came the debacle that ended in the Bolsheviks usurping the power and the consequent downpour of crowned heads. In the shamble I was unable to ascertain the fate of these two sportsmen; whether in the far off Caucasus they too had met their fate or they had escaped the general massacre.

Joining the Royal Flying Corps I proceeded to Egypt, where one sunny day in summer I became too defiant of gravity and discovered that Newton was right; I had a bad crash. Weeks later, in November, 1918, to be exact, I sat with my crutches under a big cottonwood tree at the Gezireh Sporting Club, on an island in the Nile off Cairo, drinking tea. At the table next to mine was an English nobleman and his lady and a very much beribboned captain of a British cavalry regiment. In a casual manner I ran my eye over his decorations and noticed to my surprise that they were nearly all Russian orders; the George, Vladimer, Stanislas, St. Anne. I looked up and saw a pale, wan face tanned a light yellow, brown eyes with heavy rings under them, and an imperious nose.

I nudged the officer sitting with me. "Do you know who that officer is?" I asked him.

"You mean the one with the Dicky Bird decoration?" he inquired.

"That's the Russian Grand Duke Dmitri Pavlovitch!" I said with impressive manner.

"Humph!" was his reply. "Sickly looking devil!"

He looked up and caught me staring at him; instinctively I bowed and he smiled back engagingly. My friend grinned. "Pal of yours?"

"No!" said I, "but confound it all, that man's been through the mill! Two years ago in Russia he was as powerful as any king and now he has lost everything. I'm glad to see him carrying on with us—he's game!"

His Lordship's party rose to go and as he passed Dmitri bowed good-by to me. This seemed to irritate my companion. "I don't like Russians," he snapped. "They're all right to meet socially, pleasant and interesting enough, but they let us down in this war!"

"Nonsense!" basing my answer on the knowledge of how the radical elements that had made the Brest-Litovsk peace had betrayed all the loyal Russians long beforehand. "That man going out there has done more himself to help our cause along than you or I, or any fifty of us about here!"

"How?" he inquired, sceptically.

"Well, in the first place he killed Rasputin and—"

"Good Lord!" he said excitedly. "Why didn't you say that before?" He gazed admiringly at the departing figure. "He must be 'top hole.' You know, that must have taken a bit of nerve; to go in and kill that rascally monk—with all his pull at court!"

The next time I saw him was in London, in the spring of 1919, at the Ritz Hotel. I went over and said "How do you do?" in Russian. He jumped up and overwhelmed me with a flow of Russian that left me gasping. I laughed, and said in English: "Thanks, for the compliment, but I don't understand it half that well. And I must apologise for coming over and speaking to you because I see you don't remember me. I have only met you once—back in Petrograd!"

"Oh, yes I do!" he said politely. He was too sensitive of the other fellow's feelings to admit forgetfulness. I could see him ransacking his memory, trying to place me.

"Then, in Cairo, last fall, I saw you there. You did not look very well."

"No," he said quietly. "I had just come from Mesopotamia—it was hot there!"

Hot, so it was; hot as the gates of hell! but I did not tell him that it was not heat that I saw in his face at Cairo—it was Memory! The face of a man whose eyes are forever looking backward!

We sat down and began to talk about Russia. "Things are in a terrible state there now," I said.

"Yes," he said sadly; "my heart is dead!" I was surprised at this frank show of emotion. In Paris or New York it would not have sounded so strange; but here in England, where one is taught from childhod to stifle all outward display of one's real feelings, it came as a distinct shock.

"My relations, friends . . . all are killed . . . !"

"But," I said consolingly, "you did one wonderful thing for which the whole world admires you."

"What's that?"

"Rasputin!"

"Ah," he smiled, "that saved my life. Protopopoff told Yousupof and me that we were to proceed to the Caucasus in exile, and I was there when the revolution broke out. From there I came out and joined the English and, well, here I am."

"Some friends of mine bought that big Renault of yours." I told him.

Instantly he was all animation. "Bozhe moi! Wasn't that car a beauty? I designed the body myself; it was all aluminium, one piece hammered and . . . !" He launched out into a description of the car and its performances; Russia, the past and everything else forgotten.

A portly colonel, with a bibulous nose, hove in view and some other officers came and surrounded him. They all looked at the clock and nodded mysteriously towards the petite bar. We repaired thither, where we 'had one' . . . and then another "Zdarove!" he said, raising his glass. "Zdarove!" I replied, raising mine in salute. We smiled and the other officers growled, "Say, what is all this?"

Before leaving I reached in my Burberry and pulling out my last hundred Russian cigarettes, made for me by Smith on Piccadilly, gave them to the Duke. "You will like them," I said. "They're almost like the old ones!"

Next day I walked into Smith's to place another order. "I say!" he said angrily. "Don't send in any more Russians to order these cigarettes, you know I don't make money on them. Those tubes are too damned hard to get!"

"What did he look like?" I asked.

"Oh, a tall, slim fellow, with a bushel of decorations."

"Smith," I said, "when that man orders your cigarettes . . . you make 'em!"

"Why?" he asked peevishly.

"Well," I replied, "you wouldn't understand, but in the United States he is what is known as a regular guy . . . a white man!"

"One leads where many follow."

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Avoid disappointment by refusing substitutes which do not possess its advantages.

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

We have learned that centuries ago our earth was one great fire, but gradually has diminished, until now it is hardly noticeable, only in great depths under the floor of the earth, and by volcanic action present at this day. My question is, when and how this great fire was created, and why it has decreased. Is it due to our sun traveling further from our planet, and did our sun commence this action?—R. C. T.

The "one great fire," as you call it, probably consisted of a mass of matter, now differentiated, at least in the exterior portions into rocks, metals, and other minerals, which mass may, on account of the great heat, have been not merely liquid, but vaporous, though held by its great gravitative force in a more or less rigid state.

Fire, in the true sense of that word, there was none. Moreover, the period that you have in mind occured not centuries but many millions of years ago. "Centuries" is a word chronologically as inadequate to describe such a span of time as "seconds" would be in speaking of the length of a man's life.

This would be hypercriticism but for that fact that the use in connection with planetary evolution of a time unit currently associated with the brief duration of recorded human history gives to many minds a totally wrong impression of the vastness of the geological and pregeological ages.

The origin of the primal molten, and perhaps vaporous, stage of the earth has been variously explained. According to the well-known nebular theory of Laplace, it was the result of a progressive condensation of nebulous matter, aggregating under the laws of attraction about a central nucleus.

Indeed, that theory pictures for us a time when the substance of our planet existed in the form of a nebulous ring surrounding the sun, and assumes that this ring broke up and afterward collected all its substance into the ball we call the earth. By the transformation of the kinetic energy of the particles of the mass, as they drew into closer association and collided with one another into heat energy, the forming earth acquired a high temperature.

A later hypothesis, the "planetesimal theory," assumes that the earth was formed by the falling together, at a gravitational "knot," of vast numbers of revolving fragments (the "planetesimals"). These fragments, traveling in a multitude of involved and intersecting orbits, are supposed to have been produced by a collision, or a close, disrupting approach of two immense pre-existing bodies, one perhaps a "living" and the other a "dead" sun.

But, whichever of the two rival theories we adopt, we find that we are led to a stage in the earth's history when its mass was partly or perhaps wholly molten or vaporous, and intensely heated. Being surrounded on all sides by the cold of space the heated ball parted with its thermal store by radiation.

No body can remain permanently at a temperature above that of its surroundings, unless it possesses a never-failing means of constantly restoring its own energy, or unless such restoration can be effected from without. This loss of temperature by the earth has not been caused by a change in its distance from the sun, a distance which we have no reason to suppose has been materially altered since the formation of the solar system.

As to the present condition of the earth's interior, we have not much evidence except that which is of an inferential nature, and this is variously interpreted. The opinion once widely held, that the core of the earth is a mass of liquid fire, has given way in consequence of the discovery, through the study of the phenomena of earthquakes and "earth-tides," that the entire globe behaves as if its body were as rigid as steel, or glass.

No doubt the temperature is high deep in the interior, but even if it surpasses the melting temperature of rock, the result of the enormous pressure at great depths may be to prohibit anything resembling the mobility of a liquid.

In places where the pressure is locally and temporarily relieved by any cause, such as the rending and upward bending of superincumbent layers or the opening of fissures reaching to the surface, relatively small portions of the compressed mass may suddenly assume the liquid state and gush forth through volcanic and other vens.

Even though we have to do a good deal of guessing in these matters, we may still flatter ourselves that we have done pretty well, considering that our race began upon this cooling ball, and that we have never had an opportunity to get far enough away from it to see it as a whole—except in the imagination, without which glorious faculty we should be most pitiable creatures.

Music's Effect On Various Animals

From time to time investigations have been made in order to ascertain whether the legend of Orpheus, the wondrous music of whose lyre enthralled the wild beasts of the forests, rests upon a fact. Cornish, at the London Zoological Gardens, endeavored to discover by experiment what effect music would have upon the creatures there in captivity. With him went a musical friend, who played on the violin to insects, reptiles, birds and beasts.

The trantulas listened, or did not listen, unmoved and sulky. They whose bite is said in fable to cause others to dance refused to dance themselves. Not so the scorpions. After a few notes had been played they became agitated and writhed and danced tumultuously, their excitement increasing with every crescendo and decreasing with every diminuendo.

In the reptiles' cages more marked effects were seen. The monitor lizard listened and swayed. Black snakes were attentive and started up and hissed. A boa crept as close as possible to the instrument and seemed enraptured.

But of all snakes, the cobra is reputed to be the most susceptible to music and the specimen experimented on at the zoo did not belie its fame. On hearing the violin it raised itself in the traditional attitude on its tail and spread its hood gently, swaying to and fro the while.

The first quadrupeds to which the violin was played were polar and grizzly bears, which manifested much pleasure and stood up at the front of the cages to listen. The wolves snarled and cowered in fear at the sound of the violin, with their tails between their legs, hair bristling and bodies quivering in spasms of fright. The same results were noted in the case of jackals and foxes. The sheep, naturally enough, found much pleasure in that which frightened the wolves. So did the wild hogs, the bisons and the zebras.

The elephant did not care for the music, but snorted and whistled with rage. The monkeys displayed a critical diversity of sentiment. Some listened eagerly with nods and gestures of appreciation, while others scowled and turned away in disgust.

Further experiments were made on the various animals with other instruments, especially with the piccolo and the flute. As a rule, the shrill notes of the piccolo annoyed, frightened, or enraged the animals, while the softer tones of the flute soothed and pleased them.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELIS

Oh, the July skies are tender and the air is sweet as wine;
all life's troubles seem but bubbles
in that garden-plot of mine.
There the flowers greet me gayly, nodding on their slender stems;
fragrant posies, pinks and roses,
with their dewdrop diadems.
There the sunlight loves to linger through the golden Summer days, and I fancy necromancy lurks along my garden ways. For it seems so sort of friendly, and I never enter there but its smiling paths, beguiling, charm away my every care. There the birds are always singing rapture swelling every throat, loudly voicing their rejoicing in each glad and golden note. I am happy when I'm digging, when I'm busy with my hoe; when I'm spading I am aiding things that love in sun to grow. Just to watch them reaching upward is to me a joyous sight; 'tis a pleasure that I treasure, they are growing toward the light. When the skies of June are smiling with a glow that mocks all art, I am scheming, I am dreaming in the plot that holds my heart. There are some would choose a palace with its trappings rich and fine; with that only I'd be lonely for my pinks and columbine. For I've spent so many Summers in this garden-plot of mine that my hours with the flowers 'round my very heart entwine. There's a little bit of Eden hid in every garden-plot and those closes, sweet with roses, weave their spells about the spot.

Very Simple, But You Mean Seven, Not Nine

It is upon the ingenuity of the railways in arranging their train schedules to meet new conditions that will depend whether local option in daylight-saving work with the minimum or the maximum of inconvenience. The New York Central and the New Haven officials have tackled the problem promptly and boldly, and seemingly have solved it. Their clocks will remain unchanged, but the commuter with his watch set ahead will find a train running at the accustomed hour. He will have to exert his mathematical abilities only when he reads the time-table, and he will not mind if the train he takes at eight o'clock is set down as running at nine.

There are people, of course, who will be puzzled for a while, even by a computation as simple as that, but they will soon straighten out the one-hour difference, and there after be as happy as a commuter deserves to be.—New York Times.
